Participation in the deployment of a “digital institutional platform” for profitable investment projects

The global economy has entered a period of increased volatility. A global recession is just around the corner. Central banks are raising interest rates to tame inflation. The investment market is more turbulent than ever before.

Digitalization opens up new opportunities and prospects for investment business. However, the transition period inevitably carries many risks, vulnerabilities and threats associated with the lack of institutions.

Digital prospects for the investment business are exciting and impressive. Meanwhile, new solidarity systems of capital concentration require new investment strategies, financial instruments and highly liquid projects.

And to reduce the risks of investing and safely convert digital opportunities into profitable projects, it is necessary to deploy a “digital institutional platform” that will provide legitimization of digital property, new investment management strategies and the ability to navigate global investment business factors in the context of inclusion, innovation and rapid changes in technology and conditions.

Digital institutional platform will provide: a) new global and inclusive security system; b) new digital property; c) new Neuromorphic, event-driven and human oriented architecture for information business interaction (instead of today's data base-driven architecture, which has a fundamental problems with actualization, verification and exchange of information); d) auto formalization of business processes on the basis of digital intelligence.

The above prospects are implemented within the framework of the creation of a new international organization – the International Hub for Sustainable Development Project Management.

We offer you to consider the possibility of your company's participation in this project.
